The next installment of Need2Soul is a particularly special one off affair as it will be our first and last party at The Cross before it disappears at the end of the year. To give you all a chance to say goodbye in style we've put together a diverse night of musical programming. Hosting the main room will be the true legend that is Mr Danny Krivit, the 'Body&SOUL' pioneer and '718 Sessions' creator who has been the wondrous driving force and preserver of superb dance music since its dawning. Looking after you beforehand will be our trusted resident Rap Saunders.

The body of Arch 2 comes in the form of producer and owner of record labels 'Ibadan' and 'Apotek', Jerome Sydenham. Renown for branching out, exploring the soulfulness of techno, tech-house and then bringing it back to the origins of dance with the classics. Standing right by his side we've teamed him up with Manoo, an underground gem and rising French DJ. One part of the sublime Rodamaal, with which he has released records on 'Buzzin' Fly. Listen out for his latest release; 'Joparish' featured on 'Tronic Jams vol 2' an EP brought out on DJ Deep's Deeply Rooted House Records. From the UK, looking after these two boys is Katie Barber, the first lady of house who always gets it just right.

To round off this special night we bring you Dominic Stanton aka Domu in the 3rd and final arch. With an extensive back catalogue of quality releases and remixes, he joins the kings who piece together the puzzle of music from hip-hop to jazz that cannot be boxed; he regularly demonstrates this at Plastic People's bi-monthly night 'Co-Op'. Look out for his debut album with Pete Simpson 'Look a little Further' on Papa Records. Joining him is Toni Blackbeard, one part of Blackbeard productions and Uptown Safari with Yam Who? Toni's organic and class palette of tunes will endeavour to warm our spirits up in the anticipation of a blazing party.

Advance tickets are highly recommended, and are on sale now at £12.50 from www.ticketweb.co.uk. Tickets on the door will be £17.
